

Sky News is looking for young people aged 16 and above for a political debate in Norwich

Sky News is staging a debate between the five Labour leadership candidates in Norwich on Sunday September 5th.

It will be screened live in the morning. They are keen to invite 16+ year olds to be in the audience and to put questions to the candidates.

This will be particularly interesting to students studying politics and economics but anyone over 16 is free to apply.

If young people would like to attend, they can e mail debates@skynews.co.uk; giving their age, school or sixth form name, phone number and their question - if they have one at this stage.

Those emailing are asked to please use an e mail address which they can be contacted on during the school holidays, as Sky will get back to them with full details in early August.
