

What drives the 'multiplier effect'? Why do some children commit to becoming gifted, whilst others just watch the X-factor?

A morning with Dr Barry Hymer...

University Campus Suffolk

12th March 2011

9.30am til 12.30pm

Barry is an experienced teacher and chartered psychologist, currently practising as a freelance educator (he is the Director of Still Thinking UK Ltd.) and author of many educational publications and materials. He holds the position of Visiting Fellow at Newcastle University's Centre for Learning and Teaching and is Consultant Editor for the journal Gifted Education International.

This opportunity to spend a morning with Dr Barry Hymer is open to all teachers, school leaders, parents and local authority colleagues. Barry will outline the early implications of his current enquiry into why some people 'really go for it' in their chosen area of excellence, whereas others fall by the wayside. This research is hugely important in terms of what we can do as educators to help young people choose to excel.

To book your place:

Send a cheque for £50 per delegate together with your contact details (Name, telephone number and email address) to the address below. Please make cheques payable to 'Excellence East'. We will send you email confirmation of your booking and joining instructions on receipt of your cheque.

Please note that we will not hold your booking until receipt of your cheque.

Closing date for receipt of cheques: March 4th 2011.

Post to:

Excellence East
c/o Fulbridge School
Keeton Road
Peterborough
PE1 3JQ