

Effective use of data for middle leaders to support raising standards

NIEAS For - Secondary Phase

Effective use of data for middle leaders to support raising standards

This course is designed for middle leaders to improve their knowledge about data sets available to support department development.

The course will enable delegates to consider how data can be used for target setting, monitoring and evaluation. The use of data is a key focus within the new OFSTED framework and there is an expectation that middle leaders have a clear understanding of its uses within their own departments.
