

The Music and Technology Convention

Thursday 11th October 2012

Norwich Forum Library & The Garage

Engaging young people is difficult. We may just have the answer.

Music Technology offers a dynamic, flexible way of working with young people from all backgrounds.

- Typically one third of Youth Music funded projects include sessions focusing on music technology
- Many of the greatest successes in Youth Music funded projects are through the use of assistive music technology, facilitating creativity for disabled musicians
- Many projects report how music technology can be especially engaging for young men in challenging circumstances, often leading to progression into other forms of music making or music production
- Youth Music believes that, harnessed correctly, music technology has the potential to democratise access to many more thousands of potential young music creators

But where do you start? Is it really expensive? How much do I need to know? Who do I turn to?

The Garage in Norwich hosts a convention exploring how Music Technology can expand your work with young people.

Contemporary Music Technology enables musicians to create music in almost limitless ways. It offers equally limitless ways in which music leaders and organisations can engage young people. This exciting convention brings together musicians, music leaders and organisations to explore how music technology can deliver for all parties.

With presentations from some of the region's groundbreaking projects, workshops and plenty of technology to try your hand at, you'll be able to meet experienced providers, learn about funding opportunities and where to get advice.

For more information visit:

<http://www.thegarage.org.uk/music-and-technology-convention-pgid100.html>

Delegate rates: £10 including lunch. Places strictly limited, so book soon at:

<http://musictechconvention.eventbrite.co.uk>

