

Right from the start: effective behaviour management in the secondary phase

Good behaviour is closely associated with success achievement.

Ofsted insists on the importance of positive behaviour and attitudes for high achievement and overall effectiveness of schools. Delegates will examine current Ofsted requirements around behaviour and safety while exploring the key factors that influence an Ofsted judgement of 'good' and 'outstanding' for a school. The essential features of an effective behaviour management system, from strategy to operation, from policy to practice, will be unpicked - with delegates able to determine actions to be taken, to best ensure positive outcomes, within their own setting.

- Fully understand the current Ofsted requirements, from a range of sources, for behaviour
- Understand the key components of effective behaviour management practices and review own current policy and practice
- Determine next steps and action plan for success.
