

Young Entrepreneurs!

A day to inspire the next generation of business leaders

Are you aged 15-25?

Do you want to start a business one day?

Let us inspire you at our FREE event

Norfolk Library and Information Service are delighted to invite you to attend our Young Entrepreneurs event on Friday 21st November.

Local author Alexander Gordon Smith will be giving a talk and Q&A about how he started his business, and in the afternoon Franks Bar will be bringing some food to taste while talking about how they got their business off the ground.

We will also be joined by the Princes Trust who support young people looking to start businesses, and NWES who are a local business support organisation. Both will be talking about practical steps young people can take to start a business.

Finally, the UEA will be present to talk about what the Business School can offer those who may wish to study business at university.
