

TRAINING AIM

To raise awareness of the issues concerning grief and loss faced by children and young people, and to consider effective ways of working with this group.

By the end of the session participants will have:

- gained statistical information on the prevalence of and the outcomes for bereaved children
- recognised a range of experiences related to loss and bereavement
- increased their awareness of the issues faced by children and young people experiencing a bereavement
- gained in confidence in working with children, young people, their parents and carers during their bereavement
- identified resources and organisations available to support bereaved families
- taken part in a therapeutic activity used with bereaved children and adults

Training is suitable for professionals working with children and young people e.g. teachers, social workers and pastoral care workers.
