So far we have delivered 200 events to over 5000 people in a wide range of professions – teaching staff, police, NHS staff, social workers, early years practitioners etc. In the last 3 years we have visited the far corners of Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland and England and have equipped delegates with essential knowledge about safeguarding not only the young people they work with but also themselves online. And we know this format works!

99% of those who attended also told us they felt better equipped to protect children and their organisations online as a result of attending one of our free briefings!

As before, the briefings will be 2-hour long sessions on e-safety including latest emerging trends, research into online behaviours, resources, sources of support, insight into how OFSTED inspect e-safety as well as legal and law enforcement updates.

Do register quickly to avoid disappointment! To find out more go to www.esafetylive.com
