Primary English Toolkit: Spelling

Improve your practice in teaching spelling.

One of the keys to writing well is the ability to write fluently and accurately. Only when children are confident and competent spellers can they focus all their energy on composition. For many children, being a good speller goes hand in hand with being a good writer. We can transform how children view themselves as writers through supporting them to become better spellers.

This course gives delegates the opportunity to explore and take back to their classrooms a range of practical and systematic approaches to teaching children to spell. Delegates will have the opportunity to not only consider how we can teach children to understand spelling rules and conventions, but also how we can go on to support children to practically apply them in their independent writing.

Outcomes

- have an overview of systematic approaches to teaching spelling
- understand the spelling requirements in the national curriculum
- be equipped with fun, practical activities and ideas to promote confident, independent spellers
