

Introductory Training for Parent/Family Support Practitioners

3-day training for relatively newly appointed Parent Support Advisers, Family Support Practitioners and those in similar roles

Course Outline

The importance of training for staff working with children, young people and their families is receiving increased attention in relation to ensuring personnel receive the best possible training to enhance their roles. This training equips delegates with the knowledge, skills and confidence to both support and advise 'parents' and those in care giving roles in helping their children develop and achieve at school.

The course will cover the following modules over the 3 days of training:

Module 1 - Principles, values that underpin the National Occupational Standards for Work with Parents. Difference and diversity.

Module 2 - Understanding children and young people's development.

Module 3 - Building connecting relationships and communicating effectively with children, young people and families. Partnership model of working. Coaching principles. Concepts of parenting. Helping families set goals

Module 4 - Keeping children and young people safe from harm. Attendance legislation.

Module 5 - Integrated working. Reflective practice
