

Whole school approach to EAL teaching and learning strategies

Briefing for Headteachers

Course Outline

DfE introduces changes to recording EAL learners' proficiency in English. From September 2016 schools will be required to make an assessment on an ongoing basis and record EAL pupils' proficiency in English.

MAAS advisers will provide hands on and in depth briefing that will inform the delegates how to assess EAL children and what methods and approaches are best to teach academic language across the curriculum with a particular focus on EAL learners.

By the end of the training participants will:-

- be aware of the latest changes introduced by DfE with regards to EAL learners' proficiency in English
- Be aware with a range of assessments
- be introduced to "How language works: Success in literacy and learning" - a comprehensive and innovative professional development program for educators seeking to extend their understandings about language and literacy
- learn how to promote a teaching and learning cycle that provides opportunities for an explicit focus on language as part of a rich learning environment.
