'Circle of friends' - supporting children who are socially isolated (EPSS twilight)

Outline

Every class has a child that no one wants to play with and many of the adults in school understand why. They are often children who are at the centre of playtime conflict, socially vulnerable or who seem completely unaware about how to play with others. How can a teacher change this?

Description

"Circle of friends" is a structured intervention that is designed to support children who feel friendless at school and their learning, behaviour or wellbeing is suffering as a result. It can be run by a teacher or TA over the course of a half term and is good for both the mentee and the mentors.

Outcome

Children can be part of the solution with a little guidance from an adult.

Audience

Any adult who works with a child who seems socially isolated.
