

Sex Education Sorted (Secondary)

Sort out your schools' sex and relationships education in a day!

Course Outline

This is essential sex and relationships (SRE) training for SLT, PSHE leads, teachers and support staff who are experienced or completely new to SRE.

The course will identify all the statutory duties, legislation and Ofsted requirements relating to SRE and develop a clear understanding of what today's pupils need to learn, including fostering character skills for the 21st Century.

You will consider pupil and parent consultation methods to ensure the development of a needs-led, inclusive spiral SRE curriculum that is relevant to all pupils, and sympathetic to your school ethos.

Delegates will be provided with a range of different teaching and learning strategies, quality assured resources and assessment techniques as well as the opportunity to develop the confidence to effectively teach the most challenging SRE themes within a fully supportive environment.

By the end of the course participants will:-

- ensure your school is fully compliant with statutory duties, legislation and Ofsted judgements relating to SRE in schools.
- identify the key components of an effective, inclusive and compliant SRE curriculum. Including pupil consultation and parental engagement.
- develop effective SRE teaching and learning practice, including assessment strategies and the identification of quality assured, inclusive and age appropriate resources.
- foster confidence in teaching new and emerging SRE themes specific to primary and secondary phase, such as transgender issues, pornography and female genital mutilation, including managing pupil opinions and answering 'tricky' questions!
