

Reading Comprehension Toolkit

Discover how to actively develop children's reading comprehension to ensure they make meaning from and enjoy the texts they read.

Course Outline

Exploring the barriers to comprehension young readers face, this course will offer delegates strategies to teach reading comprehension in an engaging and supportive way. With a particular focus on developing the higher order thinking skills essential to comprehension, such as inference, delegates will also consider ways to promote active readers and reading for pleasure. They will also benefit from the opportunity to consider the whole range of skills needed to comprehend in context and reflect on the areas they feel their children need to develop.

By the end of the course participants will:-

- understand the skills needed for active comprehension
- have a range of practical teaching strategies which develop comprehension to take back to the classroom
- have considered which strategies need to be developed in the children.
