

Securing High Quality Reading Provision

Map your reading curriculum for progression, understand what makes effective reading provision and leave able to clearly articulate your whole-school curriculum for reading.

Course Outline

Ensuring that you have a well-sequenced and planned reading curriculum in your school is fundamental to young learners' success and well-being.

This training programme will help you to monitor and improve reading outcomes by providing you with tools and audit material to assess your school's current reading provision, alongside sharing effective teaching strategies and highlighting resources which support learning. Knowing the theory behind how we make meaning from texts and the teaching strategies that can develop reading skills will help you to map your reading curriculum for progression; monitor how well this key subject is taught in your classrooms; and clearly articulate your curriculum for reading.

By the end of the course participants will:-

- Understanding the key knowledge and skills needed for successful reading comprehension and how they can be explicitly taught in the classroom.
- With tools to audit and improve your reading provision in school to ensure that it is coherently planned and sequenced and reflects practitioners' understanding of how children learn to make meaning from texts.
- Confident your school is making the most of key teaching 'slots' such as shared, whole class and guided reading.
- With practical teaching ideas and strategies to share and develop back in your school.
- Able to confidently articulate your reading curriculum.
