Reflex Theatre's New Shows Help Young People Make The Right Choice!

Norwich, UK – Reflex Theatre are putting their faith in young people with their brand new school shows as they are allowing teens to decide what the characters do and what happens in the show!

“No Big Deal”, which tackles the issue of Substance Mis-Use and “Trust Me”, focusing on Child Exploitation, gives young people the opportunity to decide what choice a fictional character makes, watch the consequences unfold and then learn from the interactive experience to equip them for the real world.

Both shows have been written by the company's Managing Director, Megan Reilly, and have been developed in collaboration with The Hebron Trust and the Safe & Sound Group with support from Arts Council England Project Grants.

Artistic Director, Callan Durrant, says: “We know how difficult it is for young people to make the best choices for themselves, especially when there's so much pressure to do so and it can be difficult to bounce back from a ‘wrong choice’. We wanted to develop something that allowed young people to safely see what happens if they ‘get it wrong’, how to spot warning signs, how to deal with difficult situations and to learn how to make the best choices possible.”

If you work in schools, the education sector, a community centre or venue and you are interested in Reflex Theatre's work, you can get in touch via their website www.reflextheatre.co.uk or email them at education@reflextheatre.co.uk
