

Norfolk Teaching School Hubs:

Webinar for school leaders on reformed National Professional Qualification

Teaching School Hubs provide high-quality professional development to teachers at all stages of their careers. The two Teaching School Hubs serving Norfolk's schools are:

- Inspiration Teaching School Hub, serving Breckland, Great Yarmouth and South Norfolk (plus Waveney).
- the Julian Teaching School Hub (based at Notre Dame High School), serving Broadland, King's Lynn and West Norfolk, North Norfolk and Norwich:

We are delighted with the engagement from schools with our Early Career Teachers services and continue to welcome contact from schools, as their recruitment for September concludes. We now want to share information regarding another key part of our service: National Professional Qualifications (NPQs).

Find out more about Reformed NPQs

NPQs are being overhauled, as part of the 'Golden Thread' of high-quality, evidence-based professional development. The new suite of qualifications includes specialist routes, whilst the existing qualifications retained will be based on an updated evidence-base coherent with and building on the Early Career Framework.

On Wednesday 7th July 4-5pm we are holding a briefing event for school leaders (book here), together with Educate Norfolk/NCC, where we will:

- Outline how and why NPQs are changing.
- Confirm our DfE approved NPQ lead providers and outline their distinctive features to help with your decision-making.
- Update schools on scholarship funding (subject to DfE confirmation).

We hope that you can join us, to learn more about this exciting development.

Contacts

Inspiration Teaching School Hub: Louise Jackson (inspirationschoolhub@inspirationtrust.org)

Julian Teaching School Hub: Roger Higgins (julian-tsh@ndhs.org.uk)