Drama Conference - Drama and Literacy

"There are schools and teachers who have used the literacy hour as a starting point for a wide range of creative activities in reading, writing and in the other arts" (All our Futures, DCMS/DfEE/NACCCE, 1999).

"There is a positive correlation between good provision/performance in the arts in schools and higher standards of performance in literacy according to OFSTED inspection statistics." (HMI).

Drama as a medium for the teaching and learning of literacy is well established. This Conference will give participants the opportunity to familiarise themselves with current educational developments in this area and to work practically and reflectively with specialist workshop leaders.

Keynote address: Jonathan Neelands, Senior Lecturer in Drama in Education, Institute of Education, University of Warwick.

Workshops; Jonathan Neelands, Rachel Dickinson, Rob John and Patrice Baldwin.

Cost: £115.00
