Developing Global Citizenship Through History and Geography

If you want to help develop your pupils as Global Citizens, you will want them to have an informed concern about the world and its people. History and Geography are perfectly suited to raising children's awareness of global issues. This popular course looks at the key ideas underpinning these issues and suggests ways to approach raising them with the young people in our schools.

As a result of attending this course, participants will:-

- be clear about what key ideas underpin the global dimensions and why they are crucial to children's learning
- have a wider repertoire of teaching strategies which promote Global Citizenship
- have a broader awareness of the range of potential resources available to support a global dimension in your curriculum.

Refreshments will be provided.

Resources will be available to buy and / or order.

Course Leaders are Sandie Sykes and Sandy Betlem of NEAD.

Cost: £115.00
