Leadership For Making A Real Difference: Involving Children in Improving Learning

Focus: Involving Children in Improving Learning and Teaching

The spring term seminar will consider ways of involving children in improving learning and teaching strategies, and curriculum design.

This is a seminar for senior managers led by practising headteachers. It is one of a series of three seminars providing opportunities to hear about, share and discuss good practice.

This year's seminars will focus on strategies for taking account of 'the child's voice' in the life of the school.

These seminars aim to:

- focus on specific micro issues of leadership and management
- provide practical ideas for improvement
- give opportunities for course members to consult and discuss with course leaders.

Refreshments will be provided.

Course Leader: Tim Strugnell
