Leading and Managing Continuous Professional Development in Schools

There have been and continue to be changes in the area of continuous professional development (CPD) for senior managers, teachers and support staff in schools. This half-day course is for emergent and established managers in primary/ middle schools tasked with leading and co-ordinating CPD, including staff development and training.

This course will enable participants to:

- advise colleagues in school about recent developments in CPD
- develop a policy for CPD in line with LEA publications about opportunities for CPD
- learn from school practitioners about their involvement with national CPD activities and how participation in such activities can influence job performance
- identify a wider range of CPD activities and sources of evidence to meet performance management requirements.

Refreshments will be provided.

Course Leader: Heather Tyrrell, Senior Adviser
