

For Immediate Release

NEW BFI Film Academy Short Course to be delivered by and held at Access Creative College Norwich.

Autumn Half term opportunity for young filmmakers

APPLICATIONS OPEN NOW.

The BFI Film Academy offers opportunities for ambitious 16-25 year olds, anywhere in the UK, to get to know more about film and how to forge a career in the screen industries.

In Norfolk, a new BFI Film Academy Short Course, is to be delivered by Access Creative College at their campus on Magdalen Street in Central Norwich. It is an introductory, hands-on filmmaking course designed to build knowledge and skills and show the different pathways into the industry. For talented and committed young people aged 16-19 years, short courses have an excellent track record of inspiring the next generation of filmmakers and crew.

Especially designed for young people with some demonstrable film making interest and/or experience, it provides a fast-paced, fun and practical filmmaking experience.

The course consists of a combination of workshops, practical skills development, watching film and meeting industry professionals. Finally, after an action-packed week, the cast and crew, friends and family are invited to enjoy a premiere of the film we will make together. Participants also have the opportunity to gain an NCFE Level 2 Award in Preparing to Enter the Film Industry.

Quotes

Dan Foden, Head of School, ACC Norwich says:

'We are really happy to work with such a great name as the BFI to be able to offer this activity to young creatives. It is wonderful for Access Creative College and the BFI to be partnering and a great opportunity for students to develop their CV and film-making skills with a recognised brand. I can't wait to see what they produce this year and in future years.'

Ian Johnson, Head of Industry Partnerships says:

'Access Creative are very happy to be partnering with the BFI on their brilliant BFI Film Academy Short Courses this year and are looking forward to seeing what our participating young people create.'
