"Tall tale telling of a Norfolk variety. In one breath it can take its audience to legendary heights and in the next it can bump back down to earth with local gossip and humour. It is a style of story-telling and performance which is alive; not so much an art but a sport: using words, images, humour, character sketching, observation, local history and imagination to create extravagant tales which will floor the listeners with their invention and look at life from a fresh and original perspective"
