

e-Learning Conference – 2nd November 2006

9.00 – 4.00 pm

Norwich Professional Development Centre

course ref : 6EN083

This conference is part of the Secondary Strategy and the Norfolk E-Learning Programme of Support for E-learning in Norfolk. There are two places for delegates from each secondary school. The intended audience is the person responsible for developing e-learning across the school and one other member of staff with an e-learning role.

Supply cover will be given for schools needing to cover an actual teaching commitment to attend the day, to claim you will need to send a completed but uncoded supply form to Anne Mitchell at the PDC, payment will be paid directly to the supply teacher.

The programme is wide ranging and will cover:

- The launch of the Norfolk e-Learning Strategy
- The launch of the innovative 'Leading Practitioners-Leading Learners Programme'
- Keynote speech by Peter Ford on 'Blogging in Education'
- Strategic Leadership of ICT - Starting points and current developments by NCSL
- e-learning with excluded learners
- development and use of virtual learning environments
- accessing high quality digital resources designed to exploit broadband
- The Learning Platform Programme

The keynote presentation will be given by Peter Ford, a nationally recognised authority on the use of blogs (online journals) in education. Additionally, a Alan Humphrey from the National College of School Leadership will outline current developments in relation to strategic leadership of ICT. There are further presentations about the use of e-learning to cater for excluded learners and to outline the Norfolk e-Learning Strategy.
