

OVERSEAS EXPEDITIONS AND FIELDWORK: A one-day course for teachers and youth leaders.

Endorsed by the Outdoor Education Advisers' Panel

This one day course has been designed by the RGS-IBG Expedition Advisory Centre in association with the LEA Outdoor Education Advisers Panel for any LEA school leader who wishes to plan and lead or accompany an overseas expedition or fieldwork.

The Royal Geographical Society (with Institute of British Geographers) Expedition Advisory Centre is the world's leading centre for information, training and advice to anyone undertaking scientific or adventurous expeditions overseas. Each year it assists more than 500 teams in planning and preparing their expeditions.

This new course is for teachers who plan and lead overseas expeditions and fieldwork, including those using a contracted expeditions company. The course is also useful for a school's EVC.

The course covers all the key elements and procedures of planning an expedition: including setting educational objectives for the expedition; where to go for information and advice, establishing competence, leadership and supervision, expedition planning and administration, Risk Assessment, contingency and emergency procedures, post expedition evaluation and reports.

The course will be led by Mrs Shane Winsor who work for the Expeditions Advisory Centre at the Royal Geographical Society and this course comes strongly recommended by schools and LEAs across the country.

The course will be held at Burwell House Near Newmarket on October 12th 2005
The day will commence at 9.30 coffee for 9.45 start and finish at 4pm
