Celebrates

The Life of Mammals

If you enjoyed the series – then you will enjoy this !

At

Holt Hall Field Study Centre
Kelling Road, Holt, Norfolk, NR25 7DU.

On

3rd, 4th and 5th of September, 2004

The weekend will follow some of the themes of the BBC series
"The Life of Mammals" as presented by David Attenborough.

The weekend will include a look at herbivores, predators and prey and insectivores and consider the features that adapt our mammals to survive in their environment.

Trapping and release of small animals.

Early morning deer watch.

A boat trip to Blakeney Point for the seals.

Identifying and reconstructing small mammal remains from owl pellet analysis.

Bats and batwatching.

The course is suitable for anyone, of any age, who would like the opportunity to learn a little more about the lives of some of our common mammals. We will use some of the programme materials as introductions or follow-ups to practical sessions. There will also be opportunities to look at, and take part in the on-line activities on the BBC Mammals website. For course participants without computer experience, help will be given.

We are sure it will be a weekend to remember.

The inclusive course fee is just £130

Which includes a sherry reception on Friday evening, all meals, tea/coffee, accommodation, tuition and boat trip.
Plus, free loan of binoculars if you require them.

Holt Hall is situated one mile north of Holt in North Norfolk . Access is via either the Kelling Road (main entrance) or Cley Road. Holt itself can be reached along the B1149 from Norwich or the A148 from King's Lynn.

Holt Hall is fully licensed and wines and spirits may be purchased if required.
