

Using Photography in the Classroom

An INSET opportunity for Key Stage 1 and 2 teachers

Norwich Castle Museum and Art Gallery
Thursday 9th October 10.00am - 3.30pm

From 29th September 2003 until 29th February 2004 Norwich Castle Museum is hosting an exhibition called 'A Period Eye: Photography Then and Now' which explores the development of photography in Norfolk in the middle of the 19th century.

To coincide with this exhibition we are offering teachers an exciting INSET opportunity along with the chance to view the exhibition itself.

The INSET will be led by Kamina Walton, author of Framing the Child: Photography in the Classroom and Picture My World: Photography in Primary Education.

The day will be a series of talks and practical demonstrations on how you can use photography more effectively in the classroom.

The cost of the session is £35.00 per teacher, which includes refreshments but not lunch.

If you would like to attend then please fill in the application form below.
