

Do you have an Inspirational Teacher who is a Local Hero?

The Evening News Local Heroes Awards 2005 have just been launched. We are urging the people of Norwich to nominate their real-life local heroes – those special members of society who have either done something extraordinary, been remarkably brave or helped the community or an individual above and beyond the call of duty.

One of the Categories in the Evening News Local Heroes Awards is Inspirational Teacher of the Year. Teachers can provide us with inspiration for the rest of our lives and help us recognise what we can really achieve and how much talent we have. Do you know a special teacher who has provided special help and support to their students?

The 2005 Local Heroes Awards ceremony takes place on Friday June 3rd 2005 at Dunston Hall Hotel, Norwich, and the winning teacher and the school they represent will receive fantastic publicity for all the good work they have done. The winner of the Inspirational Teacher of the Year Award will also be entered into the Hero of Heroes Award with other category winners.

Editor of the Evening News, David Bourn said: "The awards are an important part of community life, they encourage community spirit whilst rewarding those who have gone above and beyond the call of duty – something which we can not encourage enough. Now in it's third year, we are delighted that the Evening News' Local Hero Awards play a small part in honouring those who deserve to have their achievements recognised by the community."

Marion Mayhead, Marketing Manager of sponsors Stena Line said: "The Stena Line, Harwich - Hook of Holland team are proud to be able to support such a worthy event for the second consecutive year. In this day and age its rare, and therefore so much more rewarding, to see examples of true community spirit & bravery and I'm pleased we have the awards to enable the community to both recognise and applaud our local unsung heroes."

The Evening News Local Heroes Awards attracts excellent media coverage and is hugely popular in the local community. So if you know of a truly Inspirational Teacher who deserves recognition for their efforts, see the Evening News for details on how to enter them.
