Are you up to date with the latest Education for Sustainable Development (ESD) initiatives? Are you ready to take advantage of the new and different support and enthusiasm for ESD? Have you considered the implications of these new initiatives for your organisation?

Changing times is a one day highly participatory conference being run by the Council for Environmental Education. Short plenary sessions will inform participants on the latest developments in the field of ESD, but the focus of the day will be to share and discuss ideas through workshops, table-top discussions and networking opportunities.

Topics to be covered include:

- Sustainable schools consultation (Peter Wanless, Director of Schools, DfES)
- Supporting ESD in DfES (Jake Reynolds, DfESSDC)
- Learning Skills Council strategy and reviews for HE/FE (Judith Cohen)
- Building Schools for the Future (Ben Hren, DfES and WWF)
- Behaviour change and sustainable development (David Uzzell)
- The engineering professions and ESD (David Foxley, The Royal Academy of Engineering)
- Ofsted and ESD (Lescek Iwaskow, HMI)
- Sustainable communities (WWF-UK)
- The decade for ESD.

Your contributions for the day will help CEE develop its new business plan for its members.
