

Cyberbullying Conference – 22nd November 2007

Following your attendance at the Norfolk E-Safety conference you might be interested to know that Childnet is running a national conference with the DCSF on Cyberbullying in London on the 22nd November.

Childnet has specifically allocated 30 spaces at this event for teachers and there are still a few places left.

Kevin Brennan MP the Minister at the DCSF in charge of this issue is addressing the conference and the event will include a unique drama written and produced by young people, as well as practical case studies from schools who have tackled incidents of cyberbullying.

The conference is free but places are limited. Click here for the full programme and how to register for this event.
