

Futurelab needs your ideas to support learning outside school

Ideas Incubator open 21 Jan – 29 Feb 2008

<http://www.futurelab.org.uk/ideas>

Every day young people develop their skills and knowledge in activities outside of school – whether with family, friends and online communities, or by taking part in formal and informal activities at clubs and community groups, or as part of a hobby. Only 15% of children's time is spent in school and we are looking for your ideas to support and showcase the learning that takes place in the other 85%.

FREE magazine on innovation in education

Futurelab has just printed the latest version on its magazine VISION, with a mix of lively articles on subjects ranging from Every Child Matters and children as teachers to digital exclusion and assessment. Copies are available to download from <http://www.futurelab.org.uk/vision> and you can also request hard copies to be sent to you by going online (if you would like multiple copies to distribute to a network or conference, then simply drop a line to vision@futurelab.org.uk with your request).

Lacia Ashman

Communications Manager | Futurelab

1 Canons Road | Harbourside | Bristol BS1 5UH | United Kingdom

tel: +44 (0)117 915 8222 | fax: +44 (0)117 915 8201

e-mail: lacia.ashman@futurelab.org.uk | blog: flux.futurelab.org.uk

www.futurelab.org.uk

Futurelab needs your ideas to support learning outside school

Ideas Incubator open 21 Jan – 29 Feb 2008

For further information, go to www.futurelab.org.uk/ideas