

Educational Resources from the Royal Geographical Society (with IBG):

The Society is pleased to be able to offer a range of educational resources to primary and secondary school teachers. Further information on the resources listed below and the Society's range of educational projects can be obtained by contacting the education officer at uta@rgs.org.

Free online teaching resources:

- The 'Unlocking the Archives' website has a wealth of resources using photographs, maps and documents from the Society's collections. Developed by teachers, these resources can be downloaded for use in Key Stage 2, 3 or 4 Geography, History and Citizenship lessons. New learning resources to accompany the Society's exhibition on African explorers entitled 'Bombay Africans 1850-1910' have recently been added to the website and further resources exploring the history and culture of China will be available during the Summer term. Please visit www.unlockingthearchives.rgs.org for further details.

Show an exhibition at your school:

- Our exhibition 'Bombay Africans 1850-1910', containing images and stories of Africa's forgotten explorers is available for free hire by schools. An exhibition exploring the history and culture of Afghanistan is also currently available and exhibitions on China and the Punjab are currently being developed and will be available later this year. For further details and to book an exhibition please contact the Project Co-ordinator at v.patel@rgs.org.

Pupil workshops:

- The Society also offers a range of creative workshops to Key stage 2 & 3 students at its premises in London. Workshops normally accompany exhibitions and provide children with an opportunity to view original maps, photographs and artefacts from the archive. Further information about our programme of workshops can be obtained by contacting the education officer at h.sanghera@rgs.org.
