

Sweet Vibrations

Singing workshops with Grant Baxter

"I have thoroughly enjoyed the workshops I've been to. I always leave the room feeling as though I'm walking on air"

We'll sing traditional, simple world folk songs, rounds and sounds (particularly South African) in 3 and 4 part harmony, taught aurally in call-and-response. No experience necessary - just your vocal cords! What we do will depend on the ability of the age group though I can lead the whole school together if you want as well as one class at a time! (We may use percussion accompaniment. I'm open to suggestions).

Informal and educational these workshops develop pupils musical ear, understanding and ability through vocal melody, harmony and rhythm; they promote structure and discipline as a means to enjoyable learning; they enable personal expression within a group context and so develop the emotions plus individual and collective identity; they bring pupils together, creating harmony and fellowship; most of all they are great fun and so uplifting!.....

"Inspired to write and say how thoroughly enjoyable last night was, and how good to see people with big grins on their faces"

I have been a musician for 27 years. Originally a drummer I attained an Advanced Diploma in Popular/Jazz Music. 7 years ago I turned to singing (initially with classical singing lessons). Over the last few years I've been successfully developing, and leading world singing workshops in various contexts. I start teaching an Adult Education singing course in September and I am looking to bring my skills into schools and other institutions. The kids (and teachers) will love it!
