

Creative Partnerships Enquiry Programme 2010/2011 – Last Week to Apply!

A final reminder that Norfolk and Norwich Festival are currently looking for schools to be part of the Creative Partnerships Enquiry programme starting in September 2010.

This programme offers your school the opportunity and funding to work with an external partner/s to develop a one year creative learning project which explores how creativity can support targets from your school development plan. Through the Enquiry Schools programme, schools can explore what creativity is and what it can unlock for their practice, their teachers, their pupils and their communities.

"Schools, who want to develop creative learning and meet school improvement priorities imaginatively, should consider what Creative Partnerships offers. CP has a focus on enquiry based action research and supports schools to achieve outcomes in innovative ways."

Patrice Baldwin - Adviser for Arts Development and Improvement for Norfolk County Council Children's Services and National Director of the D4LC (Drama for Learning and Creativity) initiative

The application deadline is 12th February 2010

Application is online at: <https://creativeweb.creative-partnerships.com>
